

A large, stylized, pixelated 'X' shape composed of black and gray squares, centered on a white background. The 'X' is formed by two intersecting diagonal lines of squares. The central intersection is a solid black square. The arms of the 'X' are composed of alternating black and gray squares, creating a pixelated, dithered effect. The overall shape is symmetrical both horizontally and vertically.

The image displays the word "Antipater" in a highly pixelated, black and white font. The letters are thick and outlined, giving it a retro, digital appearance. The word is centered horizontally and occupies most of the frame. The background is a light gray with a subtle, fine-grained texture.
